

Debra Bowes
Board Member, Women In Bio

President and Founder, Chevy Chase BioPartners

Deb Bowes' LinkedIn profile

Debra is founder of Chevy Chase BioPartners, where she employs her 30 years of Biotech and Pharma experience to aid start-up biotech companies in Strategic Planning and Licensing. Prior to consulting, Debra was the Head of New Product Planning for MedImmune where she built a department responsible for commercial planning of the company pipeline. She served as Senior Director, Corporate Development for Amylin Pharmaceuticals, and spent several years at Pfizer Pharmaceuticals in Licensing and New Product Planning. Debra served as Worldwide Market Manager for Centocor where she was responsible for expanding licensing agreements in Europe and Japan. Debra started at Hybritech, Inc. where she held multiple commercial positions of growing responsibility.

Debra holds a B.S. degree in biology from the University of Cincinnati and a Medical Technologist (M.T.) certification from the American Society of Clinical Pathologists. She is currently an MBEE candidate at Johns Hopkins Univ.

Debra led Women In Bio as President in 2011 during which time she oversaw the evolution of chapters outside of the original Washington D.C base. She rejoined the Board of Directors in 2013 and provides guidance on strategy and vision for the future of WIB.